I am Lebogang, a boy
who lives in a village
called Motshawane.

I live with my mother, father and
two siblings, Lesedi
and Tshupo.

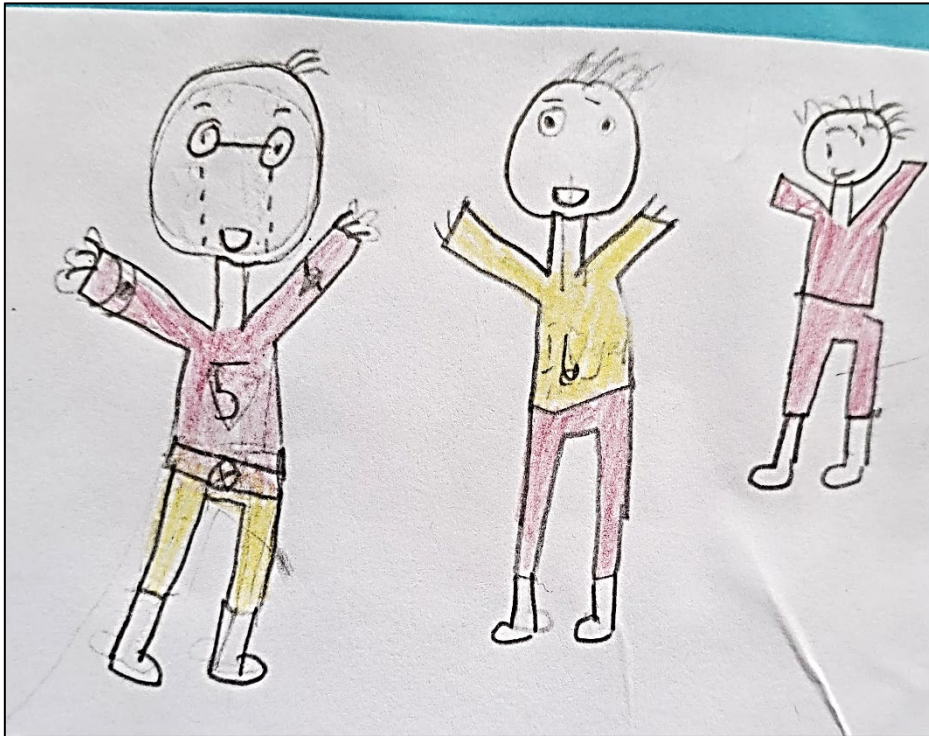

When we come home from school I take care of my younger siblings because my mother and father go to work till late.

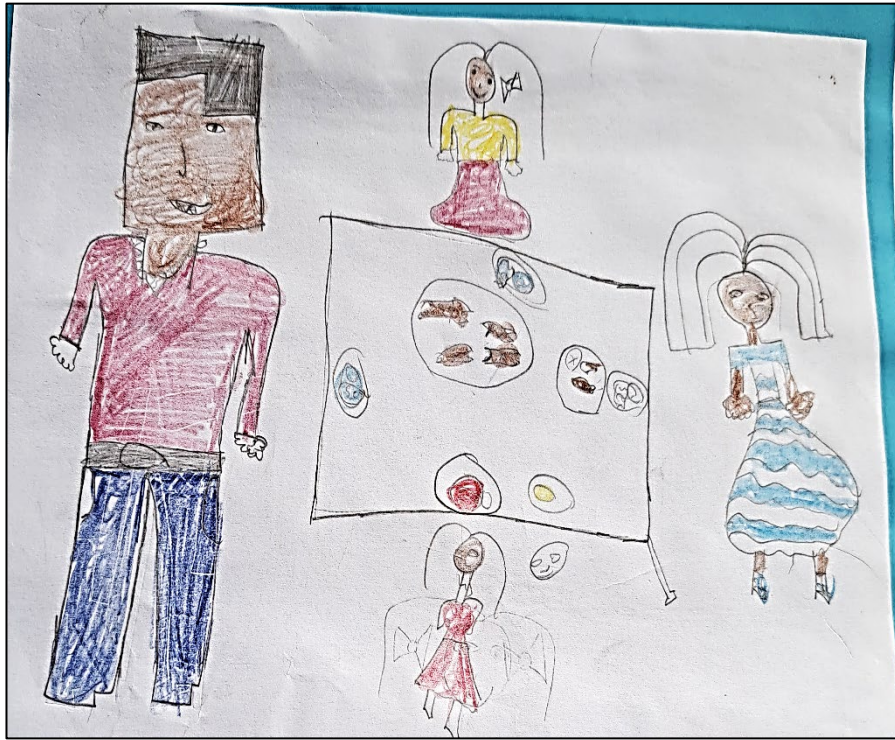

Every morning, my mother prepares food for us when we return home from school.

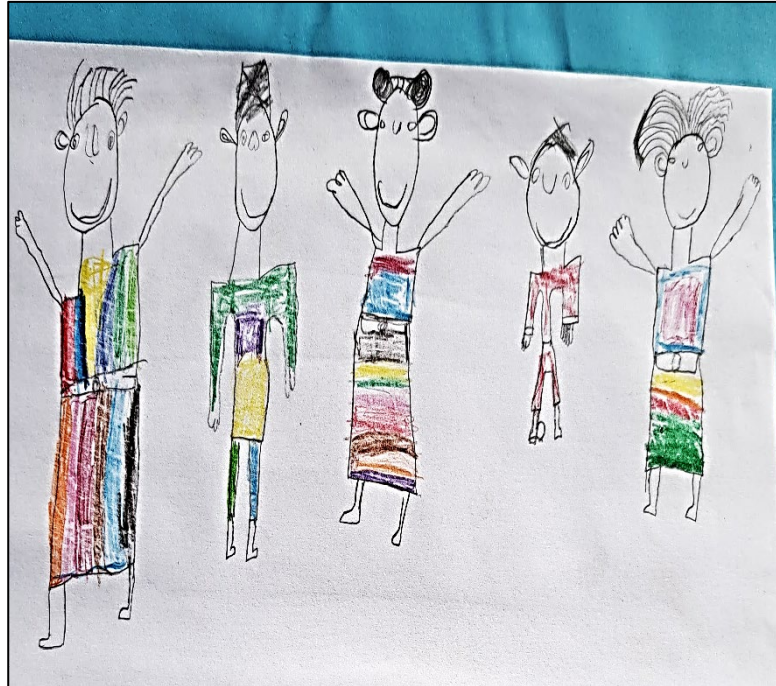

One day we were
left at home
hungry because my mother forgot to
cook food for us.

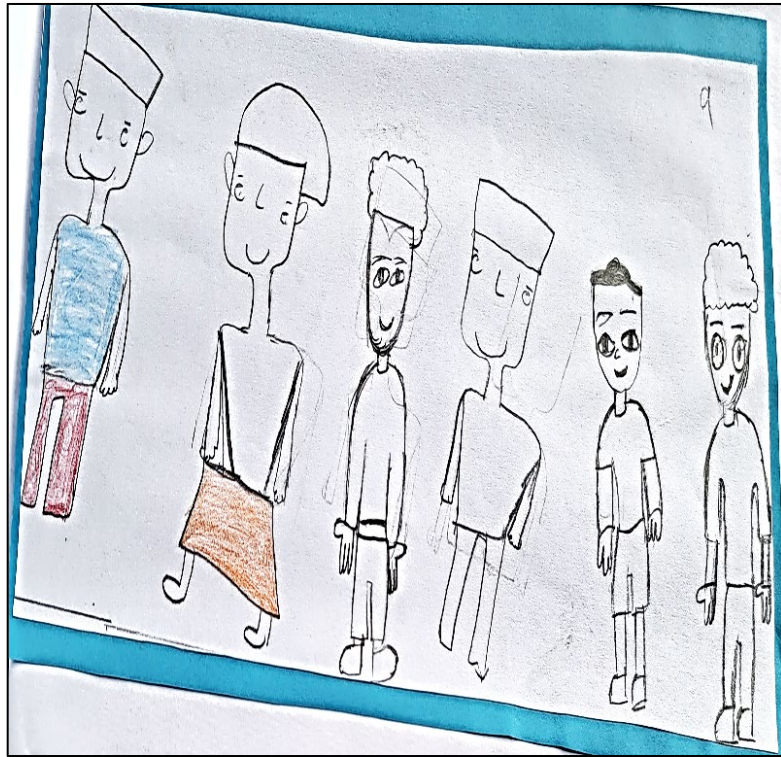

Our neighbour saw
us playing outside.
She noticed we
were hungry she
called us.

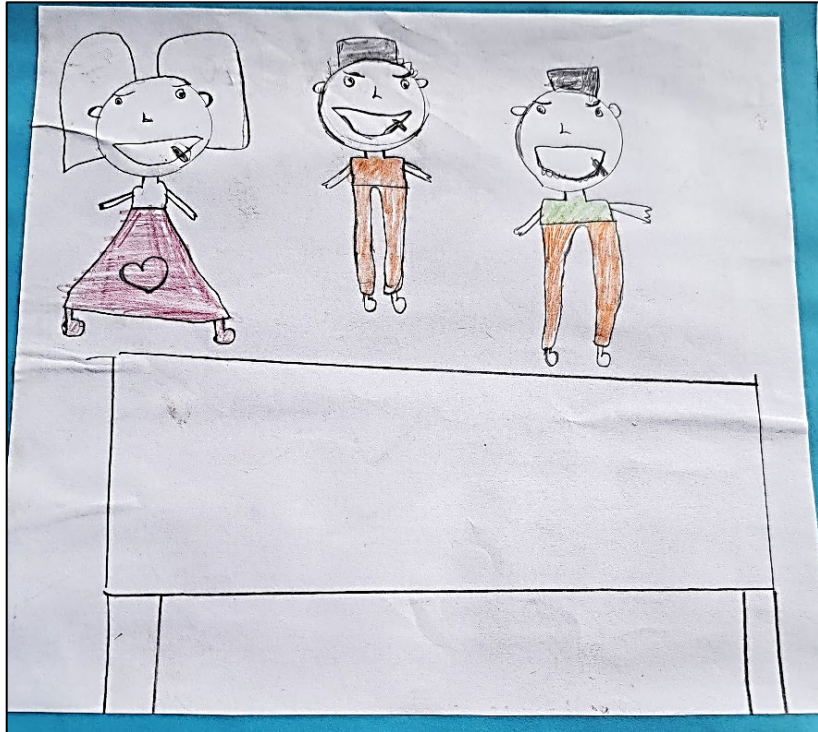

She gave us food.
We ate, and we
washed the dishes.

When mother and father came back from work, they found us fed and satisfied.

Mother asked us
what we ate. We told her that we had eaten at the neighbour's house.

Mother and father
went to the
neighbour's house.
They thanked the
neighbour.
