Karabo was a naughty boy who usually walked with his sister to school each day.

He almost hurt his sister with the gate because he does not think before he does things. "Hey, you almost hurt me with the gate because you do not listen," said his sister with an angry voice.

Karabo was walking in the middle of the road without looking for oncoming cars. The driver shouted at him, "Look where you are walking, I almost ran over you!". Karabo continued walking without listening.

At school, Karabo does not walk slowly. He joins the other children in the line.

He does not keep the school yard clean. He throws rubbish everywhere after eating. He does not listen, even when the school caretaker talks to him.

He does not respect other learners' things when he is in the classroom. He takes things that do not belong to him without permission and uses them.

His sister told the teacher about his bad manners at home and school.

His teacher scolded him about his bad behaviour and told him that if he didn't stop, she would be forced to call the police. Then Karabo agreed to change his ways.
