Miss Tshegofatso and Mr Matshidiso had a baby girl called Lerato. She was the only child in the family.
Lerato was a very beautiful girl, and she was slim. This girl was born blind.
Lerato was not attending school because of her blindness. She was ten years old. When other children went to school, she stayed at home doing nothing.
She was using a walking stick to walk to avoid bumping into things.
Not being able to attend school, Lerato was very sad. Other children in the village said hurtful words to her, like, “Lerato, you will be an uneducated elder.”
One day while her parents were eating lunch, they received a call from the hospital to go there fast.
When they arrived at the hospital, the doctor informed them that someone had requested that before she died, her eyes be given to Lerato.
When they arrived home, they told Lerato the good news. Lerato was very happy to hear the news.
After a few days, Lerato left with her parents for the hospital to do the eye operation. Lerato was scared of the eye operation.
After a week passed, Lerato started seeing her parents for the first time since she was born. She was very happy to be able to see. She even shed tears of joy. Lerato started attending school like other children at Masephe Primary School.
