I am Lebogang, a boy who lives in a village called Motshawane.
I live with my mother, father and two siblings, Lesedi and Tshepo.
When we come home from school I take care of my younger siblings because my mother and father go to work till late.
Every morning, my mother prepares food for us when we return home from school.
One day we were left at home hungry because my mother forgot to cook food for us.
Our neighbour saw us playing outside. She noticed we were hungry she called us.
She gave us food. We ate, and we washed the dishes.
When mother and father came back from work, they found us fed and satisfied.
Mother asked us what we ate. We told her that we had eaten at the neighbour’s house.
Mother and father went to the neighbour’s house. They thanked the neighbour.
