There was a boy called Bongane. He was raised by his grandmother and he lived with her.
His grandmother was old and sick. Bongane was the one taking care of his grandmother.
Bongane’s grandmother gave him an education even though she was not educated, because she knew how important it was.
Sometimes, he could not go to school because he was supposed to care for his grandmother, who was old and sick.
Bongane was doing well in his schoolwork, but the situation affected his schoolwork.
His teacher heard about the situation. She talked to the councillor about the situation.
The councillor helped by looking for a caregiver for the grandmother. She could help Bongane to take care of the grandmother.
The assistance helped Bongane focus on his schoolwork. He started doing well, which made the teacher and his grandmother happy.
