Shimane is a boy who loves school.
He has friends and teachers that he loves at school.
One day Shimane could not do mathematics at school.
Some learners laughed at him.
He got home crying. He told his mother that some learners were laughing at him because he could not do mathematics.
His mother taught him mathematics until it was night-time
The following day at school, Shimane could do mathematics like the other learners.
The other learners were happy for him. He was also proud.
A loving mother
