Greetings, my fellow classmates. My name is Pabi.
Today I am going to tell you about my friend, the brain.
My brain performs important functions and enjoys training through reading books.
My brain helps me think, remember things and respond to my senses.
Last year I failed my grade because my brain and I were not working well together.
I did not train my brain properly by reading.
I did not understand what I was taught in class and got low marks.
This year I am training my brain by making time to read.
My parents are proud of me since my results have improved.
My friend, the brain
