Today it is Friday, and we are reading. The teacher chose Gosego to read first.
Gosego reads aloud very well. Gosego can’t see properly, so she has glasses.
After everyone has read, school is out, and everyone goes home.
When she arrived at her house, Gosego took off her school uniform and accidentally stepped on her glasses.
Her heart was broken, and she cried. Her mother told her not to worry she will get them fixed.
On Monday, her mother came to school to tell Gosego’s teacher what had happened.
The teacher then placed Gosego on the front desk so that she could see very well. She then taught us about eye problems.
On Friday, Gosego came to school with her glasses on. She was very happy and went back to her old table.
