APPENDIX I:

BURIAL DATA TABLES

Appendix I: Burial Data Tables

The composition of the following data tables should, I believe, be fairly clear and straightforward. But some comment is required about the data in a few categories.

Ceramic Phase

The dating of the burials must only be considered as approximate. This is for the simple reason that the date of the ceramic phases is only approximate. Since the burials were most often dated by the ceramic fill in which each was found or by the pots placed as grave goods, then consequently, the date of the burials can only be approximate. Burials of known rulers or those which contained grave goods with a date(s) inscribed have, of course, been reliably and accurately dated. But I believe it is simpler to list and date all of them under the ceramic phases. The burials dated to a particular phase are, however, listed in general chronological order. So, for example, Burial 31, the first of the Imix phase burials at Tikal, is of an earlier date than the last, Burial 1. This logic applies to every burial of every phase of every site.

Burial Enumeration

The burials of several sites had to be specially enumerated for these tables while the enumeration adopted by the excavators at other sites has a logic that may not be immediately apparent. As a result, some explanation of burial enumeration is required for each site.

1) Mountain Cow: The enumeration follows the sequence of appearance of the burials in Thompson's text (Thompson 1931). Thus Chultun A becomes Burial 1, Chultun B becomes Burial 2, Chultun C becomes Burial 3, Vaulted Chamber

I, Mound N becomes Burial 4, Burial III becomes Burial 5, Vaulted Chamber II becomes Burial 6, Vaulted Chamber I, Mound A becomes Burial 7, Vaulted Chamber III becomes Burial 8, Burial VII becomes Burial 9, Burial II becomes Burial 10, Vaulted Chamber X becomes Burial 11, Chultun D becomes Burial 12, Burial IV becomes Burial 13, Vaulted Chamber IX becomes Burial 14, Vaulted Chamber IV becomes Burial 15, Burial VIII becomes Burial 16, and Burials 17 and 18 are the two remaining, unnumbered burials. This may appear unnecessarily confusing but listing the burials in this way eliminates cumbersome terms, indicates them simply as burials, and provides a simple number for each.

2) Baking Pot: The 27 burials at Baking Pot are specially enumerated for the tables since burials found at different locations within the site were numbered identically by the different excavators. To avoid confusion, Ricketson's (1931) Burial 1 has to be distinguished from the Bullards (1965) Burial 1, and the Willey et al. (1965) Burial 1 and so on. The simplest method to distinguish them is to add the first letter of the last names of the respective excavators to the burials they found. Thus, Ricketson's 15 burials from Mound G are referred to by the letter R and follow his original numerical order. They are numbered R1 to R15. The same applies to the Bullards burials which are referred to and listed as B1 to B7. The same principle applies to the Willey burials but because 4 burials were numbered the same from different mounds, the following arrangement is made: Burial 1 of Group I, Plaza I is W1, Burial 2 of Group I, Plaza I is W2, Burial 1 of Mound 3 is W3, Burial 2 of Mound 3 is W4, and Burial 3 of Mound 3 is W5.

3) Barton Ramie: The burials for this site follow the enumeration implemented by the original excavators, i.e. providing the number of the mound in which the burial was found followed by the burial number.

However, the composition of 2 burials, 147-2 and 123-11, are different from the original. Burials 2, 3 & 4 of Mound 147 were so mixed they are considered here as a single, multiple burial, 147-2, and not separately as originally presented (Willey et al. 1965: 142 & 554). Therefore, there are no Burials 147-3 or 147-4 in the tables. Burials 11 and 12 of Mound 123 are considered a single burial of a mother and child, Burial 123-11, as suggested by the original excavators but for some reason presented separately (ibid.: 118 & 549). Consequently, there is no Burial 123-12 in the tables.

4) Benque Viejo & San José: At both sites the burials are enumerated in the way originally adopted by Thompson (1940 & 1939, respectively), which was to number the burials separately for each plaza group in which they were found. There is one exception. In these tables, Burial B4, San José, includes Burial B5. The interments were so mixed they are considered as one burial, B4, and not separately as Thompson had done (Thompson 1939: 199). Therefore, there is no Burial B5 in the tables.

5) Holmul: My enumeration follows the numerical order of Merwin & Vaillant (1932), but since they did not adopt any formal numbering system I have inserted the letter of the building in which each burial was found in front of the burial number. Thus, the burials of Building B, Group II, consist of Burials B1, B2, etc., and the burials of Buildings E and X, consist of E1 and X1, etc., respectively. But a problem arises by the fact that burials were discovered in two different Building F's. To avoid confusion, the burials of Building F, Group I, are prefixed with the number 1, and the letter F, and the burials of Building F, Group II, are prefixed with the number 2, and the letter F. So, for example, Burial 1 of Building F, Group I, is 1F1, and Burial 1 of Building F, Group II, is 2F1.

The composition of 3 groups of burials are considered differently.

Burials B17 - B19 were so mixed I have considered them as a single, multiple interment, Burial B17, and not as individual burials. Burials B3 and B4, though disturbed, consisted of only 1 body and should therefore be considered a single interment, Burial B3. And Burials B13 & B14 were so mixed they are best considered as the single, multiple interment, Burial B13. Thus, Burials B18, B19, B4 & B14 have been eliminated from the tables.

6) Uaxactún: All burials are enumerated as originally established by the excavators, i.e. prefixed with the letter of the plaza group in which each was found and followed by the burial number, e.g. A1, B1, E1, etc. The burials found in housemounds are prefixed with the letters HM.

7) Tikal: The 107 burials of this site follow the original method of enumeration and are numbered in the order of their discovery. The few problematical deposits are prefixed with the letters PD.

8) Altun Ha: The enumeration for this site is the same as that adopted by Pendergast (1979, 1982 & n.d.). The burial number is prefixed by the structure in which each was found, e.g. Burial E-14/7. Burials that Pendergast considered as tombs were prefixed with the letter T, e.g. TB-4/7. I do the same even though I have not classified all his tombs as tombs, e.g. TE-1/2 which I classified as a simple crypt.

In the tables are included the skull burials found in front of Str. C-13 which were not listed by Pendergast. These are numbered as Burials C-13/34 and C-13/35. In addition, Burial C-23/1 is separated into 3 distinct interments, a, b & c, as implied by Pendergast (1982: 250) but for some reason not actually listed as such. They are in the tables.

9) Dzibilchaltun: The enumeration is the same as that used by Andrews and Andrews (1980). It consists of a burial number prefixed by the structure in which it was found, e.g. Burial 12-1. One burial, 96-6, is separated into 2 burials, 6a & 6b, because the 2 skeletons appear to have been distinct, non-contemporary, interments.

10) Altar de Sacrificios & Seibal: The Altar burials are enumerated as they were by Smith (1972) and the Seibal burials are enumerated as they were by Tourtellot (in press). The Seibal problematical deposits are prefixed by PD, and the burials of both sites were simply numbered by the order of discovery.

11) Copan: The enumeration follows the methods adopted by Gordon (1896) and Longyear (1952). Gordon's Burials were simply numbered and those he considered as tombs were prefixed with the letter T. I do the same regardless of whether I classified a grave as a tomb or not. The Longyear enumeration has a rather different and more complex logic. A burial number is composed of the number of a burial in the order of its discovery in a particular year followed by the year of discovery. So, for example, the first burial found in 1938 becomes 1-38, or the second found in 1946 becomes 2-46, and so on. Burials he thought were tombs are enumerated the same way with an additional prefix of the letter T. I do the same regardless of my classification of each grave.

However, 2 sets of burials, Burials 34 & 35 and 25 & 26, are both considered as contemporary, single, multiple interments, Burials 34 & 25, by me rather than individual interments (Longyear 1952: 36-37). Therefore, Burials 35 & 26 do not appear in the tables.

12) Piedras Negras: The enumeration is the same as used by Coe (1959) but includes the infant sacrifice designated as a cache, Cache R-3-2 or Lot 16, by Coe (ibid.: 95) but as Burial 16 in the tables. It may be a dedicatory cache but it is also clearly an interment and treated as such here.

13) Palenque: The burials of Palenque are a compilation of interments found by different excavators which were either not numbered or not distinguished. Distinction is made by using the first letter of the last name of the respective archaeologist who discovered them, or the first letter of the building in which each was found, as a prefix to the burial number. Thus, Il becomes Pacal's burial found in the Temple of Inscriptions (Ruz 1954 & 1973); the R burials are those discovered by the Rands (1961); the C burials are those found in the Temple of the Count (Ruz 1958b); the E burials are those found in Temple XVIII (Eighteen)(Ruz 1958a); and the A burials are those from Temple XVIII-A (Ruz 1962). The S burials, which were discovered by Blom & LaFarge (1925-27), remain unchanged.

14) Toniná: The enumeration follows the method adopted by Becquelin and Baudez (1979). It consists of the burial number prefixed by the Roman numeral of the operation number in which each burial was found. So, for example, V-1 is the first burial of excavation operation, V. A problem does arise with 4 graves which were reused. Consequently, the burials are distinguished by the additional letters, A, B, and C. The burials in question are IV-3A & IV-3B,C, IV-9A & IV-9B, IV-1A & IV-1B,C, and IV-2A & IV-2B,C. Burial III-1A,B is merely a contemporary, multiple burial.

Grave Location

This means more or less what it says, i.e. in what structure, plaza or whatever each burial was found. The floor level or staturum in which each burial was found is not specified, but an indication is made if burials were found under benches, stelae, altars, or special burial constructions.

Grave Context

This refers to the type of structure in which a burial was found. The contexts are as described and defined in the text (chapter 3).

Grave Type

The grave types are as I have classified them (chapter 2) but it is the grave varieties, not just the types, which are listed. Consequently, I have used the Roman numeral and Arabic number combination from the classification for simple graves in order to distinguish their otherwise unnamed varieties (see Table 2). The same is done for capped pits (III:4) in order to distinguish them from simple pits and emphasize their inclusion as a variety of cist.

Skeleton

The categories under this heading are straightforward and simply follow what has already been explained in the text (chapters 4, 5, 6 & 7). For multiple burials, skeletons are distinguished by the letters, a, b, c, etc. The methods used to age skeletons are not precise and should only be used as a rough guide. The age groups are distinguished as follows:

- 1) infants - less than 2;
- 2) children - 2 to 12;
- 3) youths - 12 to 17;
- 4) young adults - 18 to 25;
- 5) adults - 25 to 40;
- 6) old adults - over 40.

It should also be pointed out that the number of interred and their age and sex for the Altun Ha sample are based on the lab analysis and not upon the

on site estimation.

Grave Furniture

This category refers to the approximate number of grave goods for each burial, and is separated into the sub-headings of pottery and stuccoed vessels, jade, shell, flint/obsidian, and other. The number of grave goods should only be considered as approximate for some burials because the precise number of a specific type of grave good was not always provided by the original excavators. This particularly applies to the very well furnished temple and household shrine burials. In such instances, it was merely stated that, for example, jade was present, jade beads or shell beads were present, hundreds of jade beads, flint blades, etc., were present, or a many beaded bracelet, anklet, necklace or collar was present. Such approximation does not really occur for non-temple burials because there was simply far less furniture, and every bead or fragment was counted.

One aspect of the grave goods that is not indicated in the tables (nor discussed in the text) is the position of grave goods. This is because the positions were not always indicated in the excavation reports, and position may not always have been important or meaningful (though it probably was in some instances, e.g. bowl over skull, shell over skull, jade bead in mouth and stingray spine by pelvis). Jade beads and shell beads were usually found in positions consistent with them having been worn as necklaces, collars, bracelets and anklets. The location of pots in graves was not consistent so I suggest space availability or the whim of the burial party primarily influenced where pots were placed in graves. The following, however, should be noted:

1) some of the best furnished burials contained goods that had been placed in wall niches, or in caches immediately adjacent to, below, or atop the grave;

- 2) pots frequently contained items of furniture, e.g. jade or shell beads and/or flint or obsidian blades, and unanalysed organic remains;
- 3) stingray spines were usually placed by the pelvis of the deceased;
- 4) jade beads were sometimes found in positions consistent with them having been placed in the mouth.

The position of stingray spines may be meaningful. Some art and iconography depict male individuals, usually Maya lords, mutilating their virile member with stingray spines (Schele & Miller 1986). Placing a stingray spine by the pelvis of the deceased may indicate that the person had practised this bloodletting during life and would continue to practise it in the hereafter (see Table 100).

The placing of a jade bead in the mouth of the deceased was a common Pan Mesoamerican custom (Ruz 1968: 162 & 166). It has also been written about in the ethnohistoric literature. Landa informs us that it was customary in order to provide the deceased with money - jade beads could be used as currency - to buy food in the afterworld (Tozzer 1941: 130). It seems the custom is of some antiquity probably for the same reason. Perhaps the organic residues in pots were food left for the very same purpose.

APPENDIX II:

ILLUSTRATIONS OF GRAVE TYPES AND VARIETIES

Appendix II: Illustrations of Grave Types and Varieties

The following figures are of most of the grave varieties as described and defined in my classification scheme (chapter 2). Three varieties are not illustrated: unspecified crypt, unspecified tomb and rock-cut tomb. The unspecified crypt and tomb varieties are not illustrated because of the obvious reason that the categories only exist on account of inadequate description. A rock-cut tomb is not illustrated simply because it has effectively the same appearance (ideally) as a stone lined tomb.

One grave type, chultun, is not illustrated either. This is simply because readers should be familiar with what chultuns are and because chultuns do not necessarily have one form or dimension.

The figures are as follows:

0 1 2 m.

0 ————— 0.5 m

0 1 2 3 4 5 m.

Figure II:5 - Grave Type I:5 - simple grave in which corpse was placed between the walls of existing stone lined graves and thus forming the impression of being stone lined

0 0.5 1 m

0 0.5 m.

0 0.5 m.

0 ————— 0.5 m.

0 ————— 0.5 m

APPENDIX III:

ADDITIONAL BURIALS NOT IN THE ANALYSIS

Appendix III: Additional Burials Not in the Analysis

The following is a list of burials which have recently been published but not included in the analysis. The same sort of data is provided as listed in the tables of Appendix I. A brief comment is added for each burial if there is some noteworthy aspect about it or there is some feature in common with important aspects discussed in the text, e.g. evidence for sacrifice, the extent of the furnishings, etc.

I: Komchen, Dzibilchaltun (Merida Museum)

Burial No. - ?

Location & Context - ?

Grave Type - uncapped cist

Body & Position - extended, supine; adult

Head Orientation - ?

Grave Furniture - 7 pots of various forms; 1 plate was over skull

Date - ?

II: Coba (Benavides 1981: 98-99 & Fig. 45)

Burial No. - ?

Location & Context - beneath a plaza altar in front of Stela 27

Grave Type - uncapped cist (but possibly a simple crypt)

Body & Position - uncertain, but possibly flexed or secondary

Head Orientation - ?

Grave Furniture - none visible

Date - ?

Comment - Its proximity to Stela 27 and placement below an altar suggests this was a dedicatory cache burial.

III: Colha (Hester, Eaton & Shafer 1980: 77, 119-20, 163-72 & 179-80)

Burial No. - 2003-1

Location & Context - Str. III (residence)

Grave Type - pit; I:2

Body & Position - extended, supine; infant

Head Orientation - SE

Grave Furniture - vase and 1 shell bead

Date - Protoclassic, i.e. A.D. 50-200

Burial No. - 2008-6

Location & Context - housemound

Grave Type - simple; I:1

Body & Position - fragmentary

Head Orientation - ?

Grave Furniture - none

Date - Late Classic

Burial No. - 2008-7

Location & Context - housemound

Grave Type - simple pit; I:2

Body & Position - ?

Head Orientation - ?

Grave Furniture - 1 bowl

Date - Tepeu 2

Burial No. - 2008-1

Location & Context - housemound

Grave Type - simple; I:1

Body & Position - disturbed

Head Orientation - ?

Grave Furniture - 3 flint celts

Date - Late Classic

Burial No. - 2008-3

Location & Context - housemound

Grave Type - simple; I:1

Body & Position - fragmentary

Head Orientation - ?

Grave Furniture - none

Date - Late Classic

Burial No. 2008-2

Location & Context - housemound

Grave Type - simple pit; I:2

Body & Position - mandible & femurs only, but disturbed

Head Orientation - ?

Grave Furniture - none

Date - Late Classic

Comment - Though the burial is disturbed, the presence of just a mandible and femur suggests this individual was sacrificed.

Burial No. - 2008-4

Location & Context - housemound

Grave Type - simple pit; I:2

Body & Position - extended; young adult male

Head Orientation - ?

Grave Furniture - none

Date - Late Classic

Comment - This burial was in the same pit as 2008-2. The fact that they were together suggests the two should be considered as a multiple burial, perhaps of a primary interment accompanied by a sacrificial victim. The lack of furniture would be unusual for such a combination, however.

Burial No. - 2008-5

Location & Context - housemound

Grave Type - simple; I:1

Body & Position - fragmentary

Head Orientation - ?

Grave Furniture - 1 poly bowl

Date - Late Classic

Burial No. - 2011-1

Location & Context - south side of main ceremonial plaza in front of a temple or ceremonial platform

Grave Type - large simple pit; I:2

Body & Position - 2 layers of severed skulls (27) and mandibles only (3); the 30 individuals consisted of 9 children, 3 youths, 17 adults and 1 old adult; at least 7 were male and 8 were female.

Grave Furniture - a shell, numerous large sherds and numerous chert flakes

Date - Terminal Classic

Comment - The pit was covered by a considerable amount of burnt masonry.

It is suggested that perhaps the skulls represent members of the elite who were killed and the ceremonial structure then intentionally destroyed as part of mass destruction at the site. The act may have contributed to the collapse of the site in the Terminal Classic. This is possible but I believe there is a much better explanation. The fact that the pit was very well constructed suggests it was done to prevent the skulls from being damaged. They succeeded, but such efforts to prevent destruction of the skulls does not suggest simple killing to me. Sacrifice is more likely, though this would be the first instance of a burial of a mass sacrifice of a mixed age group and sex. I suggest this burial may be indicative of a sacrifice of captive warriors, slave women and their children after some successful raid, battle, designation of an heir or coronation. The extensive amounts of burnt masonry could be the remains of the ritual celebrations after the mass sacrifice. In other words, this burial may be the result of the sort of act depicted on the murals of Bonampak.

Burial No. - 2012-1

Location & Context - uncertain, but possible household shrine

Grave Type - simple pit; I:2

Body & Position - a: seated adult

b+: fragmentary

Grave Furniture - 6 vessels and fragments of others

Date - Late Classic

Comment - There is the possibility that this grave had been reused. The fragmentary remains of human bones and sherds may be from a previous interment.

Burial No. 2012-2

Location & Context - uncertain, but possible household shrine

Grave Type - ?

Body & Position - several disarticulated skeletons; secondary

Grave Furniture - 1 vessel

Date - Late Classic

Comment - The obvious disarticulation implies sacrifice.

All of the burials are numbered as in the text, but prefixed with the operation number in which each was found.

IV: Nohmul (Hammond 1985: 239-43, 246-50, 254-57 & 529-31)

The following burials are numbered as in the text but are prefixed with the structure number in which each was found.

Burial No. - 139-1

Location & Context - Str. 139; residence

Grave Type - simple pit; I:2

Body & Position - disturbed

Grave Furniture - sherds

Date - Late/Terminal Classic

Burial No. - 139-2

Location & Context - as above

Grave Type - simple pit; I:2

Body & Position - disturbed

Grave Furniture - 1 bowl

Date - Late/Terminal Classic

Burial No. - 139-3

Location & Context - as above

Body & Position - extended, supine; adult

Head Orientation - head to E

Grave Furniture - 1 bowl

Date - Late/Terminal Classic

Burial No. - 139-4

Location & Context - as above

Grave Type - simple pit; I:2

Body & Position - fragmentary

Head Orientation - head to N

Grave Furniture - none

Date - Late/Terminal Classic

Burial No. - 139-5

Location & Context - as above

Grave Type - haphazard cist

Body & Position - no remains

Grave Furniture - none

Date - Late/Terminal Classic

Burial No. - 139-6

Location & Context - as above

Grave Type - simple

Body & Position - disintegrated

Grave Furniture - none

Date - Late/Terminal Classic

Burial No. - 139-7

Location & Context - as above

Grave Type - simple

Body & Position - fragmentary

Head Orientation - head to N

Grave Furniture - vase & bowl

Date - Tepeu 3 (Terminal Classic)

Burial No. - 139-8

Location & Context - as above

Grave Type - probably a simple crypt

Body & Position - fragmentary

Head Orientation - head to E

Grave Furniture - none

Date - Late/Terminal Classic

Burial No. - 139-9

Location & Context - as above

Grave Type - simple crypt

Body & Position - ?

Head Orientation - head to E

Grave Furniture - 2 vessels

Date - Late/Terminal Classic

Burial No. - 139-10

Location & Context - as above

Grave Type - uncapped cist

Body & Position - ?

Head Orientation - head to E

Grave Furniture - vase & plate; plate was over skull

Date - Terminal Classic

Burial No. - 139-11

Location & Context - beneath bench, Str. 139; residence

Grave Type - simple

Body & Position - no remains

Grave Furniture - 1 dish

Date - Late Classic

Comment - There is nothing unusual or striking about any of these burials. They are typical for residences. It is nice to have a bench burial.

Burial No.- 141-1

Location & Context - Str. 141; residence

Grave Type - simple

Body & Position - fragments

Grave Furniture - obsidian blade and chert flakes

Date - Terminal Classic

Burial No. - 141-2

Location & Context - as above

Grave Type - simple

Body & Position - fragments

Grave Furniture - none

Date - Terminal Classic

Burial No. 141-3

Location & Context - as above

Grave Type - simple

Body & Position - fragmentary

Head Orientation - head to W

Grave Furniture - 1 bowl

Date - Terminal Classic

Burial No. - 141-4

Location & Context - as above

Grave Type - partial cist

Body & Position - fragmentary

Head Orientation - head to E

Grave Furniture - bowl over skull

Date - Terminal Classic

Burial No. - 141-5

Location & Context - as above

Grave Type - simple

Body & Position - fragmentary

Grave Furniture - none

Date - Terminal Classic

Burial No. - 141-6

Location & Context - as above

Grave Type - simple pit; I:2

Body & Position - fragmentary

Grave Furniture - none

Date - Terminal Classic

Burial No. - 141-7

Location & Context - as above

Grave Type - simple pit; I:2

Body & Position - fragmentary

Grave Furniture - poly plate

Date - Terminal Classic

Burial No. - 141-8

Location & Context - as above

Grave Type - simple pit; I:2

Body & Position - fragmentary

Grave Furniture - none

Date - Terminal Classic

Burial No. - 141-9

Location & Context - as above

Grave Type - simple pit; I:2

Body & Position - fragmentary

Grave Furniture - 1 bowl

Date - Terminal Classic

Comment - There is nothing unusual about these residential burials either. The fragmentary condition of the skeletal remains is exasperating.

Burial No. 138-1

Location & Context - Str. 138; its location on the eastern perimeter of the residential plaza suggests this may be a household shrine

Grave Type - simple pit; I:2

Body & Position - seated

Grave Furniture - none

Date - Protoclassic, i.e. A.D. 50-250

Burial No. - 138-2

Location & Context - as above

Grave Type - capped pit; III:4

Body & Position - flexed left

Head Orientation - head to N

Grave Furniture - bowl & jar

Date - Protoclassic

Burial No. - 138-3

Location & Context - as above

Grave Type - simple pit; I:2

Body & Position - seated

Grave Furniture - 1 bowl over skull and 1 pebble

Date - Protoclassic

Comment - The meagre amounts of furniture in these 3 graves would suggest that Str. 138 was not a household shrine. It otherwise fits the Plaza Plan B arrangement.

The following burials are located in unnumbered structures. Consequently, these burials are enumerated by the operation number of the excavation followed by the burial number in the text.

Burial No. - 304B-2

Location & Context - mound of unknown function

Grave Type - simple

Body & Position - fragmentary

Grave Furniture - 1 bowl

Date - Early Classic

Burial No. - 304C-1

Location & Context - mound of unknown function; different from mound of 304B

Grave Type - haphazard cist

Body & Position - skull only

Grave Furniture - 2 pots over skull

Date - Terminal Classic

Burial No. - 304C-2

Location & Context - as above

Grave Type - haphazard cist

Body & Position - skull only

Grave Furniture - 1 bowl

Date - Terminal Classic

Burial No. - 304C-3

Location & Context - as above

Grave Type - haphazard cist

Body & Position - skull only

Grave Furniture - bowl over skull and 3 obsidian blades

Date - Terminal Classic

Burial No. - 304C-4

Location & Context - as above

Grave Type - haphazard cist

Body & Position - skull only

Grave Furniture - pot over skull

Date - Terminal Classic

Comment - There were 3 other suspected skull only burials in this mound.

Each had stones placed haphazardly over the skulls in the shape of a cairn.

I suspect these were sacrifices of some kind, either individually or as a mass sacrifice.

Burial No. - 304C-9

Location & Context - mound of unknown function

Grave Type - simple pit; I:2

Body & Position - fragments

Grave Furniture - none

Date - Terminal Classic

Burial No. 304C-10

Location & Context - as above

Grave Type - simple

Body & Position - extended

Grave Furniture - none

Date - Terminal Classic

Burial No. - 304C-11

Location & Context - as above

Grave Type - simple

Body & Position - extended

Grave Furniture - none

Date - Terminal Classic

Burial No. - 304C-15

Location & Context - as above

Grave Type - simple

Body & Position - disarticulated; possibly secondary

Grave Furniture - jar over skull

Date - Terminal Classic

Burial No. - 304C-18

Location & Context - as above

Grave Type - haphazard cist

Body & Position - disarticulated; possibly secondary

Grave Furniture - pot over skull

Date - Terminal Classic

Comment - There is nothing unusual about these. These latter burials would suggest the mounds were nothing more than residential. The skull burials might suggest a ceremonial purpose.

Nine skeletons had their head orientation discerned: 5 were head to E, 3 head to N & 1 head to west. The prevalence of head to E is similar to Dzibilchaltun, and the residential prevalence at Altun Ha. The presence of some head to N brings a similarity with Uaxactún and Tikal. The sample is exasperatingly small.

V: Quirigua (Sharer 1978: 51; Sharer et al. 1979: 59; Jones & Sharer 1980: 16)

Despite extensive excavation at this site, only 2 burials were found.

These are as follows:

Burial No. - 2C-3/1

Location & Context - Str. 2C-3; though located on the east side of a residential plaza, the excavators suggest it was a residence.

Grave Type - simple pit; I:2

Body & Position - extended, supine; adult female

Head Orientation - head to E

Grave Furniture - 1 celt and 6 copper discs

Date - Terminal Classic/Early Postclassic

Burial No. - 1B-6/1

Location & Context - Str. 1B-6; a probable household shrine on the eastern perimeter of a court of the Main Acropolis.

Grave Type - simple crypt with benches along sides

Body & Position - extended, supine; adult

Head Orientation - head to N

Grave Furniture - 2 vases & 1 bowl

Date - ca. A.D. 600

VI: Xunantunich (Benque Viejo) (MacKie 1985: 69, 75-77, 84-87 & 176-79)

The remains of at least 5 burials were found in one building, Str. A-15, a fairly substantial residence. The burials are as follows:

Burial No. - A-15/1

Location & Context - in topsoil above Room 2 of Str. A-15, a large residence

Grave Type - simple

Body & Position - infant; fragmentary

Grave Furniture - none

Date - Benque Viejo IV or later, i.e. Postclassic

Burial No. - A-15/2

Location & Context - below floor of Room 1, Str. A-15

Grave Type - simple

Body & Position - extended, prone; child

Head Orientation - head to S

Grave Furniture - none

Date - Benque Viejo IIIb

Burial No. - A-15/3

Location & Context - in bench of Room 2, Str. A-15

Grave Type - extended, prone; child; no trace of cranium, but all other bones articulated.

Head Orientation - head to S

Grave Furniture - 3 jade beads & 1 jade disc

Date - Benque Viejo IIIb

Comment - see Burial 4 below

Burial No. - A-15/4

Location & Context - in bench below Buial 3 and disturbed by it

Grave Type - simple

Body & Position - extended, prone; adult; cranium missing

Head Orientation - head to S

Grave Furniture - 3 animal teeth and 1 jade disc

Date - Benque Viejo IIIb

Comment - At first glance, the missing crania of Burials A-15/3 & 4 may thought to be the result of disturbance. Burial 4 certainly was disturbed by the placing of Burial 3, since the mandible, axis and right clavicle of the adult were lying on top of the child. But the cranium of the adult was definitely not present, nor was the child's. Therefore, intentional removal seems more likely. Does this mean these 2 individuals were sacrificed as MacKie suggests (MacKie 1985: 87)? It would seem logical and these examples could fit with some other examples of dedicatory cache burials (Table 103). However, there is a far better argument for this state of affairs to which, in fact, MacKie alludes (ibid.: 86), but does not quite jump in. The missing crania in this instance are indicative of ancestor worship and were retained as idols by the descendents. Why do I believe this? There are 3 reasons: 1) Placed in front of the bench containing the 2 burials was a small disc shaped limestone altar. 2) The removal of the crania would fit with Landa's descriptions of the removal of the skulls of ancestors to be retained for worship. 3) MacKie found pieces of human cranial bone in deposits of Room 2 and the midden that may belong to the missing crania (ibid.: 87). Therefore, I suggest that ancestor worship was practised at the altar in front of this bench, specifically of the individuals buried in it and with their removed crania. Moreover, MacKie's suggestion that the adult cranium was placed in the upper niche of the rear wall for safe keeping (ibid.) is probably dead right.

Burial No. - A-15/5

Location & Context - in topsoil above Str. A-15

Grave Type - simple

Body & Position - fragmentary; possibly adult female

Grave Furniture - none

Date - postabandonment of structure; Postclassic

General Comment - The 3 individuals whose head orientation and body position were discerned were all extended prone with head to the south. This complies exactly with the prevailing position and orientation of the deceased at nearby Baking Pot and Barton Ramie, and the orientation complies with 2/3 of Thompson's (1940) Benque Viejo burials (Table IV, Appendix I). The extended prone position with head to south certainly does seem to be the regional convention.

VII: Tikal (Haviland 1985: 123-153)

The publication of Tikal Reports 19 provides data on 31 burials from Groups 4F-1 and 4F-2. The burials are as follows:

Burial No. - 11

Location & Context - Str. 4F-43; residence or domestic ancillary

Grave Type - simple

Body & Position - a: old adult male was extended supine

b: severed skull

Head Orientation - a: head to N

Grave Furniture - none

Date - Ik phase, ca. A.D. 600-700

Comment - This may be an instance of the sacrifice of Sk. b to accompany Sk. a. Unlike our usually well furnished examples, however (Table 102), this was unfurnished and therefore, atypical.

Bur. No. - 12

Location & Context - Str. 4F-1; probably a residence platform

Grave Type - simple

Body & Position - uncertain; possibly skull only

Head Orientation - head to E?

Grave Furniture - poly bowl over skull

Date - Ik-Imix transition; A.D. 675-725

Comment - This is possibly a skull burial; possibly a badly disturbed burial; or possibly part of Burial 18.

Burial No. - 13

Location & Context - Str. 4F-15; residence

Grave Type - simple

Body & Position - child was flexed right

Head Orientation - head to N

Grave Furniture - clay spindle whorl

Date - Late Classic

Burial No. - 14

Location & Context - Str. 4F-15; residence

Grave Type - simple

Body & Position - adult female was flexed right

Head Orientation - head to W

Grave Furniture - 2 poly bowls and 2 shell rosettes

Date - Imix; A.D. 700-800

Burial No. - 15

Location & Context - Str. 4F-43; probable residence or domestic ancillary

Grave Type - capped pit; III:4

Body & Position - a: child was extended prone

b: skull & mandible

Head Orientation - a: head to N

Grave Furniture - none

Date - Ik; A.D. 600-700

Comment - This is another instance of a sacrificial victim accompanying the primary interment in which there was no furniture.

Burial No. - 16

Location & Context - Str. 4F-15; residence

Grave Type - pit

Body & Position - old adult female was flexed right

Head Orientation - head to E

Grave Furniture - 2 bowls & 1 metate

Date - Ik; ca. A.D. 600-700

Burial No. - 17

Location & Context - Str. 4F-43; residence or domestic ancillary

Grave Type - simple

Body & Position - young adult was seated

Grave Furniture - 1 bowl

Date - Ik; ca. A.D. 600-700

Burial No. - 18

Location & Context - Str. 4F-1; house platform

Grave Type - simple

Body & Position - infant was extended

Head Orientation - head to S

Grave Furniture - 1 poly bowl, 1 clay drum & 1 whistle figurine

Date - Ik-Imix transition; i.e. A.D. 700

Comment - It is possible that the severed skull of Burial 12 is actually part of this burial. This would then be another instance of a sacrificial victim accompanying a primary interment. At least in this instance there is some grave furniture.

Burial No. - 20

Location & Context - Str. 4F-15; residence

Grave Type - partial cist

Body & Position - young adult female was flexed right

Head Orientation - head to N

Grave Furniture - none

Date - probably Ik; A.D. 600-700

Burial No. - 21

Location & Context - Str. 4F-15; residence

Grave Type - simple

Body & Position - no bones

Grave Furniture - 2 poly bowls & 1 poly cylinder

Date - Imix; ca. A.D. 750-850

Comment - Is this an unused grave?

Burial No. - 25

Location & Context - Str. 4E-31; this range type structure was either ceremonial or residential

Grave Type - circular pit

Body & Position - old adult male was flexed

Grave Furniture - none

Date - Eznab; Terminal Classic and postabandonment

Burial No. - 26

Location & Context - Str. 4E-31

Grave Type - capped pit; III:4

Body & Position - a: old adult female was flexed right

b: child was extended right

Head Orientation - both with head to N

Grave Furniture - 1 poly bowl and 1 stone spindle whorl

Date - Imix

Comment - This may be a child sacrifice to accompany the dying mother
(Table 101).

Burial No. - 27

Location & Context - Str. 4E-31

Grave Type - simple

Body & Position - old adult male was flexed left

Head Orientation - head to N

Grave Furniture - 1 poly plate

Date - Imix

Comment - The old adult male may have received a death blow to the skull.

Burial No. - 28

Location & Context - Str. 4E-31

Grave Type - simple

Body & Position - adult female was extended right

Head Orientation - head to N

Grave Furniture - 1 poly plate

Date - Imix

Burial No. - 29

Location & Context - Str. 4E-31

Grave Type - pit

Body & Position - a: child was extended supine

b: child was extended supine

Head Orientation - a: head to N

b: head to S

Grave Furniture - none

Date - Imix

Burial No. - 30

Location & Context - Str. 4E-31

Grave Type - pit

Body & Position - extended adult

Head Orientation - head to S

Grave Furniture - 2 poly bowls & 1 poly plate

Date - Imix

Comment - Haviland suggests that Burials 26 - 30 were all contemporary and imply either mass murder or sacrifice (Haviland 1985: 132).

Burial No. - 31

Location & Context - Str. 4F-3; probable residence

Grave Type - capped pit; III:4

Body & Position - adult was flexed right

Head Orientation - head to N

Grave Furniture - 1 bowl inverted under skull, 1 plate, 1 poly cylinder and 10 flint flakes

Date - Early Imix

Burial No. - 32

Location & Context - Str. 4F-4; probable residence

Grave Type - haphazard cist

Body & Position - old adult male was flexed supine

Head Orientation - head to N

Grave Furniture - none

Date - Ik-Imix transition

Burial No. - 33

Location & Context - northeast of Quarry 4F-1

Grave Type - pit

Body & Position - disturbed or scattered adult

Grave Furniture - 1 dish

Date - Manik (Early Classic)

Burial No. - 34

Location & Context - east of Quarry 4F-1

Grave Type - simple

Body & Position - child was flexed right

Head Orientation - head to N

Grave Furniture - 1 bowl & 1 flint flake

Date - Manik

Burial No. - 35

Location & Context - east of Quarry 4F-1 and possibly under a small household shrine, Str. 4F-8

Grave Type - large pit resembling a chultun

Body & Position - adult was flexed left

Head Orientation - head to S

Grave Furniture - 1 dish inverted beneath head, 4 bowls, 1 cylinder and 1 obsidian flake

Date - Manik

Comment - Haviland (1985: 135) argues this burial had been located under a small shrine (household shrine). The wealth of the burial would support such a suggestion and the building may have been constructed as a memorial to this interment.

Burial No. - 36

Location & Context - east of Quarry 4F-1

Grave Type - simple

Body & Position - child was flexed left

Head Orientation - head to N

Grave Furniture - 2 flint bifaces

Date - Manik

Burial No. - 37

Location & Context - Quarry 4F-1

Grave Type - haphazard cist

Body & Position - headless adult male was supine

Head Orientation - neck to NE

Grave Furniture - none

Date - Manik

Comment - probably a sacrifice

Burial No. - 38

Location & Context - Quarry 4F-1

Grave Type - haphazard cist or pit

Body & Position - very robust old adult male; flexed supine

Head Orientation - head to N

Grave Furniture - 1 bowl inverted beneath head, 1 poly plate & 1 poly cylinder

Date - Imix

Burial No. - 39

Location & Context - Str. 4F-7; probable residence

Grave Type - haphazard cist

Body & Position - old adult female was flexed right

Head Orientation - head to N

Grave Furniture - 1 poly bowl under head, 1 poly cylinder & 1 poly dish

Date - Imix

Burial No. 40

Location & Context - Str. 4F-7

Grave Type - pit

Body & Position - adult male was extended right

Head Orientation - head to N

Grave Furniture - 1 clay barrel

Date - Ik-Imix transition

Burial No. - 41

Location & Context - Str. 4F-7

Grave Type - simple

Body & Position - child

Grave Furniture - none

Date - Imix

Burial No. - 42

Location & Context - Str. 4F-7

Grave Type - partial cist

Body & Position - adult male was extended right

Head Orientation - head to N

Grave Furniture - poly bowl inverted beneath head, 1 poly plate & 1 poly cylinder

Date - Imix

Comment - Haviland suggests that each building modification of Str. 4F-7 was associated with a burial (Burials 39-42) (Haviland 1985: 137-39). If this is true, do these modifications amount to memorials to the deceased? If so, does this imply ancestor worship among the common population here?

Burial No. - 43

Location & Context - Str. 4F-6; probable residence

Grave Type - simple pit

Body & Position - old adult male was extended supine; feet were removed

Head Orientation - head to N

Grave Furniture - none

Date - Ik-Imix transition

Burial No. - 44

Location & Context - Str. 4F-10; probable residence

Grave Type - simple pit

Body & Position - child was flexed right

Head Orientation - head to W

Grave Furniture - none

Date - Ik

Burial No. - 163

Location & Context - in bedrock of second chamber of Chultun 4F-1

Grave Type - chultun

Body & Position - infant was flexed right

Head Orientation - head to SE

Grave Furniture - none

Date - Classic Period

General Comment - The prevalence of head orientation to the north for Tikal deceased persists with this Group 4F-1 and 4F-2 sample. Of the 28 skeletons whose head orientation was discerned, 18 head to north and 19 in a northerly direction. This equates to 64% and 68%, respectively, about the same proportion as exists with our Tikal sample (Table 112). The prevalence of bowl under skull as opposed to bowl over skull also persists with this sample. The 5 in this sample may be added to the 9/13 in our sample (Table 35).
